From The Founder's Desk

Amrita Devi Foundation was started by some Vigilant, educated youth of Uttarakhand, who took a pledge to do something for society. During their childhood, they have seen the difficult life of remote rural families of Uttarakhand. Even today there is a lack of basic necessities like education, health etc. No one could have known the plight of these poor families better than these young men.

In such a situation, these youth decided to do something for the economic upliftment of the poor and deprived families living in rural areas. It started with limited resources and some generous donations from big-hearted people. The initiative was supported by many selfless activists and volunteers and the Amrita Devi Foundation's family began to grow.

Now Amrita Devi Women Skill Development Institutes and Amrita Devi EarthCare which are the branch of Amrita Devi Foundation have started spreading very fast in rural areas of Uttarakhand and across India.

From The Trustee's Desk

The Amrita Devi Foundation blossomed from the compassion and determination of vigilant, educated youth in Uttarakhand, who were deeply moved by the hardships faced by rural families. Witnessing the struggles firsthand during their upbringing, they recognized the pressing need for basic amenities like education and healthcare. Drawing from their own experiences, they embarked on a mission to uplift these marginalized communities economically. With humble beginnings and the support of generous donors, their initiative gained momentum, attracting the dedication of selfless activists and volunteers. Today, the Amrita Devi Foundation's reach extends far beyond its origins, with branches such as the Amrita Devi Women Skill Development Institutes and Amrita Devi EarthCare making significant strides in empowering rural communities not only in Uttarakhand but across India.

AWARENESS PROGRAM

(Our way to take our vision to the public)

We do marketing and outreach initiatives in our NGO to promote its work and reach out to potential supporters and donors.

One of the key strategies we do to promote our NGO and reach out to potential supporters is to participate in physical events and exhibitions. We see these events as a valuable opportunity to showcase our work, engage with members of the community, and spread awareness about our mission and vision.

At these events, we set up booths or stalls that showcase our work and achievements. We use various multimedia tools, such as videos and slideshows, to provide visitors with a deeper understanding of the impact of our work. We also provide informational brochures and flyers that give visitors an overview of our organization and its various programs and initiatives.

Through our participation in these physical events, we are able to raise awareness about our organization and its work, and we are able to connect with many like-minded individuals and organizations who share our vision and goals. These events also provide us with an opportunity to build relationships with donors and supporters, and we are able to secure funding and resources that enable us to expand our programs and initiatives.

Challenges Faced during the Initial Phase

The inception of our NGO, Amrita Devi Foundation, was not without its fair share of challenges. As we embarked on our journey towards our mission, we encountered several obstacles that tested our resilience and commitment. We believe in transparency and wish to highlight some of the key challenges we faced during the initial phase:

Lack of Funding

One of the main challenges faced by our NGO during its initial stages was a lack of funding. At the outset, we relied heavily on individual donations and self-funded programs to support our skill development courses. We reached out to our personal networks and other contacts to collect funds to finance our activities. This strategy was not without its challenges. It was difficult to secure a steady stream of funds, and we often had to adjust our programs based on the amount of funding that we had available. This created uncertainty and instability for our organization and made it challenging to plan and execute our programs effectively. However, despite these difficulties, we were able to make progress by implementing creative fundraising strategies and building partnerships with other organizations. Overall, while the lack of funding was a significant challenge for our organization, we were able to overcome it by staying committed to our mission and developing innovative strategies for fundraising and partnerships

Finding and Retaining Volunteers

Another significant challenge that our NGO faced during its early stages was finding and retaining volunteers. As is the case with many NGOs, our organization relied heavily on the support of volunteers to implement our programs and achieve our objectives. However, attracting and retaining committed volunteers proved to be a major challenge. Initially, we were able to attract volunteers to our organization through word of mouth and outreach efforts. However, we found that many volunteers lost motivation over time or were unable to commit to the amount of time required for our programs. This led to a high turnover rate and made it difficult for us to sustain our programs and operations. To address this challenge, we implemented a number of strategies to engage and retain volunteers. We also created more opportunities for volunteers to take on leadership roles within the organization and recognize their contributions publicly. By focusing on building relationships and providing a supportive environment, we were able to attract more committed volunteers and retain them over the long term. Despite the challenges of attracting and retaining volunteers, our organization has been able to make progress in achieving its mission thanks to the dedication and hard work of our volunteers.

Overcoming cultural barriers and misconceptions around education and skill development in the rural areas

One of the key challenges our NGO faced during its early stages was overcoming cultural barriers and misconceptions around education and skill development in the rural areas where we work. We found that many parents were hesitant to send their daughters to our skill development courses, believing that there would be no opportunities or value in doing so. To address this challenge, we developed targeted outreach and engagement strategies to help parents understand the value of education and the opportunities that our courses could provide. We worked closely with community leaders and local organizations to build trust and establish our organization as a credible resource for education and skill development. We also developed marketing materials and organized community events to promote our courses and engage with potential participants and their families. Through these efforts, we were able to increase awareness and participation in our programs, particularly among young women and girls. While this challenge was not easily overcome, we were able to make progress by taking a targeted and strategic approach to outreach and engagement. By building trust and demonstrating the value of education and skill development, we were able to shift attitudes and overcome misconceptions, paving the way for increased participation and impact in the communities where we work.

Steep learning curve when it came to understanding the administrative and bureaucratic aspects of running an organization

As a new NGO, we faced a steep learning curve when it came to understanding the administrative and bureaucratic aspects of running an organization. We had little to no experience in preparing the necessary documents and paperwork required for registering as an NGO and carrying out our work. Thankfully, we were fortunate to have the support and guidance of a few individuals who had prior experience in working with NGOs. They helped us navigate the complex paperwork and documentation requirements, providing us with a step-by-step roadmap for getting our NGO up and running. Over time, we also developed our own processes and systems for managing our work. We created checklists to ensure that we were meeting all the necessary requirements for filing reports and maintaining accurate records. We also established clear lines of communication between team members to ensure that everyone was on the same page and that our work was being carried out effectively. Despite the challenges we faced in the early days of our NGO, we persevered, and our hard work paid off.
